

The Home Seller's Closing Checklist

Selling comes down to a smooth closing. This checklist covers what to line up once you're under contract, how to check your net proceeds, and what to bring to the table.

CENTRAL INDIANA · YOUR REALTY LINK

Print this checklist and check off each step as you go. It follows the same stages the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau recommends, tuned for how closings actually work here in Central Indiana. Questions on any step? Call Your Realty Link at 317-997-7404.

Under contract: start the paperwork

Once your home is under contract, a few early moves keep closing day painless.

☐ Confirm the title company, closing date, and time with Your Realty Link

We'll coordinate with the buyer's side and the title company so everyone is aligned.

☐ Request your mortgage payoff statement

Ask your lender for a written payoff good through your closing date — and include any second mortgage or HELOC so nothing is missed.

☐ Complete your Indiana Seller's Residential Real Estate Disclosure

If you haven't already. Being upfront about the home's condition protects you down the road.

☐ Gather the documents and extras the buyer will want

Warranties and appliance manuals, HOA documents, any survey, and a list of all keys, remotes, and gate or alarm codes.

☐ Schedule any agreed-upon repairs and keep the receipts

Buyers often want to see proof the work was completed before closing.

Before closing day: review your numbers

You'll receive a settlement statement showing exactly what you net. Check it carefully.

☐ Review your settlement statement (ALTA)

Confirm the sale price, your loan payoff, prorated taxes, commission, and your net proceeds.

☐ Confirm your prorated property taxes and any HOA dues

Indiana property taxes are paid in arrears, so proration matters — the title company calculates your share.

☐ Decide how you'll receive your proceeds

Wire transfer or check. If you're wiring, set up verification with the title company by phone to avoid fraud.

☐ Plan your move-out and utility stop

Schedule utilities to stop the day after closing — don't cancel early. Our utilities guide has the providers by city.

Protect your money from wire fraud

Real estate closings are a top target for scammers. Never trust wiring instructions — or last-minute changes to them — that arrive by email or text. Before you move a single dollar, call the title company using a phone number you already know (not one from the email) and confirm the account details out loud. When something feels off, slow down and check with us.

Closing day: what to bring

Sellers usually have a lighter table than buyers, but don't forget these.

☐ Government-issued photo ID for every person on the title

Driver's license, state ID, or passport.

☐ All keys, garage and gate remotes, mailbox keys, and codes

Plus appliance manuals and warranties for the new owner.

☐ Your proceeds instructions

A voided check or the wire information you verified with the title company.

☐ Any outstanding documents the title company requested

Payoff details, HOA paperwork, or trust and power-of-attorney documents, if applicable.

At the table: before you sign

Read before you sign — this is where ownership legally transfers.

☐ Confirm your net proceeds figure

Make sure it matches the settlement statement you reviewed.

☐ Sign the deed and closing documents

The deed transfers ownership; the settlement statement documents the money.

☐ Hand over keys, remotes, and codes

Once the sale funds and records, the home belongs to the buyer.

After closing: wrap it up

A few final steps once the sale records.

☐ Cancel your homeowner's insurance — after the sale records

Don't cancel early; wait until you're confirmed closed and recorded.

☐ Stop utilities and forward your mail

Set the stop date for after closing, and file a change of address with USPS.

☐ Keep your settlement statement for taxes

You may need it for capital-gains reporting. A tax professional can tell you whether the sale is taxable.

☐ Notify your HOA of the sale

So dues and communications transfer to the new owner.
